Last week I would have had to pay 4½° for the same grade. Markets were in my favor also for sheep and lambs as committed the same grade." my favor also for sheep and lambs as com-pared with a week ago. But for hogs the seller was able to bring the buyer to his own terms, On the whole, markets are easier this week

Favorable News of Weather and Crops Gives Wheat a Black Eye-Corn and Onts in the Rut-Hog Products Neglected.

CHICAGO.—A good business was trans-acted in wheat to-day, but it was chiefly of a local character and credited to some of the large floor operators. There was some short wheat, so that on the whole there was considerable trading. It was rumored that a persistent buyer of late, had been letting go of some of his holdings. The market opened weak and prices declined 3c. for May and June and 1/4c. for July, closing about 2c. lower for May and June, and 36c, lower for July than closing fig-ures Saturday. There were no new features. Weather fine and crop news favorable. There was some inquiry for cash wheat here, and an order for a cargo for shipment east was being worked on. Only a moderate business was transacted in corn, fluctuations being limited to 1/2 range. The feeling was rather easy early in the day, but later in the session a steadier tone was developed.

ceived for a number of the Diamond Market said: "I saw scarcely any mean bullocks at Herr's Island this week. With the exception of a few country cattle which should have been sold for stockers and feeders, the supplies were generally good." There were a few loads of prime cartle weighing from 1,500 to 1,600 pounds.

The supply did not vary much from last week. The tone of markets was easier than last Monday, and on most grades there was a decline of 15 to 20c per hundred. Prime cattle weighing from 1,500 to 1,600 pounds were sold at $4 75,524 85; mediums, 1,200 to 1,600 pounds were sold at $4 75,524 85; mediums, 1,200 to 1,600 pounds were sold at $4 75,524 85; mediums, 1,200 to 1,600 pounds sold at $4 75,524 85; mediums, 1,200 to 1,600 pounds were and hard to sell at any price. One of them said yesterday: "I think the county can afford to hold this property. It don't need the money. To sell it now, on a rising market, and with a prospect of the improvement of Diamond street, which would add thousands to its value, would be a financial blunder, for which it would be hard to find an excuse. The men who are after it understand this perfectly well and will leave no means untried to acquire possession of it, but I hope the Commissioners will resist all pressure, and allow the title to remain where it is. The time may not be far distant when the property will be needed by the county, but if it should finally be determined to sell it, a delay of four or five years would almost double its value." If borrowed from local bankers the notes could be renewed if the makers were hard up The main objection to this sort of business is that it completely ignores the principle of protection to home industry, which is the link that h'ads all branches of local industry together. Expansion of Business Brings Ont a Good Demand for Money.

Business in the local money market opened up vesterday with a spurt that indicated a lively week among the bankers. There was a fair borrowing all round, showing a steady expansion of business. Acceptable paper was taken at 5 and 6 per cent on call, and 6 and 7 on two and four months' time. Checking and depositing were fair. The accumulated business of Saturday afternoon and Sunday swelled the clearing house report to huge proportions. ness of Saturday afterboon and Sunday swelled the clearing house report to huge proportions, the exchanges footing up $3.412,108,03 and the balances to $565,206,03. A Fourth street banker said: "The improvement in our business this season is unusually slow, but it is getting here all the same. After all, I don't know but this tardiness is best. If business had started off on the jump there would have been danger of a halt. But beginning slowly and cautiously, as it has, I think it will last through the season."

OIL IN THE SOUP. THE PITTSBURGER IS ABROAD. The Bears Raid the Market and Prices Let Go. A Business Man Kicks Against Sacrificing

The oil market developed more vim than strength yesterday. It was weak from first to last. To say that the Standard's grab in Ohio had nothing to do with it would be ignoring a fact that almost every operator recognizes, Said one of them: "While not willing to admit REAL ESTATE STILL A LIVELY ISSUE that Lima oil is responsible for all the weak-ness, I am forced to acknowledge that if there were no Lima oil the market would be in better shape." One of the worst effects of the Ohio story has been to frighten away what little out-side support there was to the market and to de-ter it from again taking hold until the quesoccupied by modern structures of brick and stone that will please the eye and cultivate the taste. Old Pittsburg is passing away, little by little, and a new Pittsburg is tions involved are fully settled.

The bears instituted a raid as soon as the Ex-change opened. Everybody seemed anxious to change opened. Everybody seemed anxious to sell. This broke the market, and from that time onward until the finish prices steadily lost ground—the close being 3 cents lower than the opening. The fluctuations were wide enough to afford margin dealers a good opportunity to do a profitable business, and they worked the lead for all there was in it. The first price was $5\forall . By easy stages the market sold down to $1\int_{\text{m}}$—the lowest point. It then railied and closed at $2\forall . Trading in puts and calls indicated small faith in an early improvement. Some of the brokers said they would not be surprised if the price dropped to 70.

Jennings & Co.'s No. 5, Brush Creek, on the Baerleen farm, broke the shell above the sand and began spraying strongly, showing the same nineteenth century progress-will soon place the Gas City abreast of any of its rivals in point of architectural elegance. The widening of Diamond street would hasten this consummation, which is so devoutly to be and began spraying strongly, showing the same indications as No. 2, which started off at 700

DULL AND FIRM.

Stocks Still in the Hands of Professions Dealers-Strong and Weak Spots-Most of the List Closes Fractionally Higher.

NEW YORK, April 22.-The stock market today was dull, but generally firm and slightly higher than Saturday's closing prices in all but a few shares. The dealings continued to be almost professional in character, and the holiday in London and Boston served to restrict to some degree the amount of business, but there was some buying for London account, especially in Louisville and Nashville, while orders to buy New England were executed for Boston. The statement of the Union Pacific of its business for the past year was regarded in an unfavorable light, as it showed a decrease in the earning power of the company, and the hope of dividends seems more remote than for a long time.

hope of dividends seems more remote than for a long time.

This showing weakened the stock, and in the active list it was the special weak spot, but had plenty of company among the low-priced shares. Short Line dropped over 4 per cent, and Hocking Valley was equally weak at one time. The decreased earnings of the company was the primary cause of the slump, inducing sales of iong stock, but the old rumor of a default in the June interest was revived, and until the President stated that the money was already earned and would be paid promptly, the decline was ranid; but the stock afterward rallied and regained most of the loss. On the other hand, Texas Pacific was quite strong late in the day upon the increasing earnings reported, and the Coal stocks, notwithstanding the reports of the depressed condition of the trade, were all higher. There was considerable selling of Chicago Gas by Chicago speculators, and that stock ran off something over 1 per cent.

and that stock ran off something over I per cent.

The opening was made at from ½ to ½ per cent higher figures than those of Saturday's close, and the subsequent movements were very irregular, Union Pacific being the weak point, followed by Chicago Gas, while Atchison, St. Paul and New England were the specially strong points. The fluctuations in the general list were confined to the smallest fractions and possessed but little significance, and dulless soon became the ruling feature, notwithstanding the weakness shown in Short Line and Hocking Valley, Louisville and Nashville, however, came to the front after 12 o'clock, and Tennessee Coal also joined the upward movement, everything moving up toward delivery hour.

oclock, and Tennessee Coal also joined the upward movement, everything moving up toward delivery hour.

After that time there was considerable realizing and prices yielded a shade, but the close was quiet and fairly steady, leaving most of the list fractionally higher than last week. The trading showed the same concentration upon a few shares, and out of the total day's business of 164,489 shares, Louisville and Nashville contributed 28,841. The lunportant changes were losses of 384 in Short Line, 144 in Union Pacific and 134 in Chicago Gas, while Tennessee Coal is 284 higher.

Rallroad bonds developed considerable more animation, the sales of all issues aggregating $1,800,000, of which Reading 4s furnished $183,000. Texas Pacific firsts $14,2000, and Hooking Valley 5s $106,000. The tone of the market, however, was more decidedly strong than for a long time.

Hale, against whom two indictments have been pending in the Federal Court at Chicago for ten years past, charging him with conspiracy to defraud the Government, appeared in court yesterday and surrendered himself for trial. Mr. Hale was a large manu facturer of matches, and the charge is that he and others conspired to furnish straw bondsmen as security for the issue to them of internal stamps for matches. # MEETING AFTER MANY YEARS.

George Kennan's Greeting From the Rus-

sinn Refugees of Chicago. CHICAGO, April 22. - George Kennan, whose magazine articles on the Russian exile system have been read from month to month with so much interest, not only in this country, but in Europe, and especially in Russia, has been in this city for some days, and has given a new evidence of the affectionate regard in which he is held by all Russians who wish or hope for the disenthrallment of their native land. One evening a well-dressed man stepped up to him and asked in English if he was not George Kennan. An affirmative reply evoked a response in Bussian. "Do you remember," the stranger asked,

"Do you remember, the stranger asked,
"meeting a young man in the Caucausus 19
years ago, while you were making a 20-mile walk through the mountains?"
"I do well," answered Mr. Kennan, scanning his interlocutor closely.

The interview closed with an invitation to Mr. Kennan to attend an informal gathering of Russian refugees in Chicago. Of course he went. In a cozy parlor h a typical Russian repast awaiting him, to be shared by a dozen or so of the same class from which the political prisoners whose condition he had been so successfully en-

A pleasant hour or two was spent in discussing the affairs of the great Eastern empire, a wide diversity of opinion being de-veloped among the exiles in the course of the conversation. Every phase of opposi-tion to the existing order of things was represented. 'Before the party dispersed Mr. Grinberg read an address to Mr. Kennan, prepared by the refugees, and presented him with a beautifully worked and embroidered white scarf such as is used to ornament
